Better wafer allocation and demand upside driving H226-2027E earnings growth

Better wafter allocation driving H226-2027E CPU project ramps

We expect CPU projects to remain GUC's main revenue driver in 2026-27E and see improved wafer allocation into 2027E. We now expect Google CPU volumes to ramp from 1.3mn units in 2026E to ~4mn units in 2027E, supported by rising TPU shipments (up 117% YoY in 2027E), a rising CPU-to-TPU ratio, and better wafer allocation from TSMC. Although GUC's CPU projects carry lower GM, we believe they remain earnings accretive given the operating leverage from limited incremental OPEX requirements. We now expect 2026E revenue growth of 94% YoY to NT$66.3 bn (vs prior +90% YoY) and 2027E revenue to grow 146% YoY (with Google CPU contributing 67% of 2027E sales), up from our prior estimate of 84% YoY. We also expect OPM to expand from 13.2% in 2026E to 13.9% in 2028E. Accordingly, we raise our 2027/28E EPS estimates by 29%/22% and lift our PT to NT$8,660 (from NT$6,700), based on 52x average 2027-28E EPS. Our 2027/28E EPS estimates are 23%/14% above consensus.

Broadening CSP exposure supports medium-term growth

Beyond the Google CPU ramp, we also see improving demand from Microsoft's Maia platform, where GUC supplies CPU and the Maia 200 accelerator. Although Maia 300 is shifting to another supplier, we see extended runway for Maia 200, as well as continued CPU shipments into 2027E. For the next-gen Maia 400, we believe this remains in the bidding stage, with GUC maintaining a competitive position over peers. GUC also secured a 2nm ASIC project from Meta in Q226 for a turnkey revenue ramp from mid-2028E. These CPU and ASIC projects, along with GUC's strong execution track record, provide attractive opportunities to engage with top CSPs on accelerator opportunities. Nevertheless, we do not expect meaningful revenue contribution before 2028.

Automotive to see more significant contribution from mid-2027E

We believe automotive will be another key growth driver for GUC over the medium term, initially supported by a Chinese EV customer from late-2026, followed by a US EV maker in H227E. We estimate automotive will contribute 2%/13% of total revenue in 2026E/27E, respectively, increasing further to 18% in 2028E. As GUC offers higher value-add in the automotive projects vs. Google CPU, we believe they should support GM and deliver a higher profit contribution relative to sales. In addition, revenue could see further upside should these solutions expand into robotic applications.

Valuation: Retain BUY, raise PT to NT$8,660

Our NT$8,660 price target is based on 52x average 2027-28E EPS (vs prior 50x), vs historical 17-84x range, supported by 56% CAGR in earnings over 2025-30E. We reiterate our Buy rating, as GUC is well positioned for upside in CPU demand, ramp of automotive projects, other ASICs and emerging optical interconnect opportunities.

UBS Research THESIS MAP a guide to our thinking and what's where in this reportPIVOTAL QUESTIONS*Q: Can GUC further grow its AI and high-performance computing sales?

Yes, in our view, supported by multiple drivers. GUC has benefited from being part of TSMC's ecosystem, with better access to TSMC's technology roadmap, especially on advanced nodes. It has won several CPU/XPU projects from US hyperscalers and it is also working with leading EV makers on next-generation autonomous driving ASICs. GUC aims to expand its tier-1 hyperscaler customer base and we believe there is an opportunity for it to provide advanced packaging services, leveraging the CoWoS capacity it secured, even though it is not directly involved in the ASIC design.

Q: Are GUC's projects on mature nodes (16nm and above) sustainable?

We think they are likely to remain stable. GUC's customers are sticky on 16nm and higher nodes. Owing to its strong IP portfolio, which reduces design costs and improves manufacturing yield, these mature nodes still contribute around 30% of GUC's sales in 2025. While we expect mature nodes to remain accretive to margins – catering to repeat projects that require little R&D resources – the growth is likely to be modest at 27% CAGR for 2025-28E vs 104% CAGR for advanced nodes.

Q: Will GUC's OPM recover in 2026-28?

We expect its OPM to show a slight improvement in 2026, as it further ramps the lower-GM Google CPU project, and incurs a temporary increase in opex due to the new Turing centre. However, we foresee a more significant improvement in OPM from 2027 as it ramps a higher GM autonomous driving project from H227, growing NRE contributions, and restocking of mature projects.

UBSVIEW

We reiterate our Buy rating on GUC and raise our 2026/27/28E EPS by 0.4%/29%/22%, respectively, primarily reflecting higher sales contributions from Google's CPU projects. We raise our price target from NT$6,700 to NT$8,660 based on 52x average 2027-28E EPS (vs a 17-84x historical range), supported by a 2025-30E EPS CAGR of 56%. Potential catalysts include: 1) further TPU/CPU upside from the Google project; 2) the continued ramp of Microsoft's AI CPU/ASIC chips and the potential to win back future-gen projects; 3) upside on new 2nm project wins; 4) a faster ramp of autonomous EV projects; and 5) advanced NRE opportunities with higher dollar content.

EVIDENCE

GUC's revenue remained muted in 2023-24, as it shifted its resources from Chinese to US customers due to BIS export controls. The customer diversification effort began bearing fruit in H125, as GUC recorded a notable uptick in the turnkey sales to US crypto customers, while the Google CPU ramp since late Q425 appears sustainable. With the support of its major shareholder TSMC, which has enabled better access to advanced technology, GUC continues to work with Microsoft, Tesla and other hyperscalers on custom AI chipsets, which should underpin its growth in the next few years.

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

GUC stock rallied 57% in the past three months vs 3% for the TAIEX, on Google TPU news in our view, and is now trading at 55x 2027E EPS vs its historical 17-84x range. We believe the stock should continue to re-rate on TPU upside, rising CPU/TPU ratio, multiple automotive project ramps, and potential upside from wafer allocation. We expect a 56% CAGR in earnings over 2025-30E and foresee potential upward revisions in consensus earnings estimates being a catalyst.

Risk to the current share price is skewed (1.7:1) to the upside

GUC is trading at NT$7,615 (as of 21 September 2026).

UPSIDE (NT$12,000.00): Our upside scenario factors in stronger sales growth in 2027-28E than we forecast in our base case, on the back of better demand for Google's TPU and US/China automotive projects, more N3 wafer allocation by leading foundries, and faster penetration of other hyperscalers, lifting 2027/28E sales by 170%/40% YoY. Our upside OPM assumptions are 13.4%/14.1% for 2027/28E, 0.2ppt above our base case owing to a limited increase in opex, supporting a 96% CAGR in earnings over 2026-28E. Our upside scenario valuation of NT$12,000.00 implies a 76x 2027E PE.

BASE (NT$8,660.00): Our base case reflects our expectations of a solid business growth outlook in 2027-28E, supported by the continued ramp of Google's CPU project, initial ramp of automotive projects from Q4'26, and expansion into other hyperscalers. We forecast 2027/28E sales to grow 146%/34% YoY, and OPM to expand to 13.2%/13.9% from 12.7% in 2025 on operating leverage, despite its GM potentially normalising to around 17.8% in 2028 (from 24.8% in 2025) on a higher proportion of sales from the CPU project, resulting in earnings growth of 83% CAGR over 2026-28E. Our base-case valuation of NT$8,660.00 implies a 52x 2027-28E average PE.

DOWNSIDE (NT$5,000.00): Our downside scenario factors in slower sales growth in 2027/28E than we forecast in our base case, due to softer growth in Google's CPU due to a wafer capacity constraint and slower demand for mature process products, dampening sales growth to 121%/26% YoY. Our downside OPM assumptions are 13.0%/13.7% for 2027/28E, 0.2ppt below our base case, resulting in earnings growth decelerating to a 68% CAGR over 2026-28E. Our downside scenario valuation of NT$5,000.00 implies a 41x 2027E P/E.

Company Description

Global Unichip (GUC) is a leading IC design service company in Taiwan, founded in 1998. The company's business is to design chipsets for customers that do not have IC design capability, with the goal of reducing entry barriers and risks for chipset design and shortening the time to market. The company's target to enable more IC design for start-ups and system companies is complimentary with TSMC, which would benefit from a growing customer and application base, in addition to the company's existing IC design and IDM customers.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

We value Global Unichip based on a PE methodology.

Downside risks include a slower-than-expected business recovery for mature nodes, lack of new project wins, and wafer capacity constraints.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.
