Stronger and diversifying CoWoS capacity expansion in 2027-28

Following UBS Taiwan Summit (Day 1, Day 2&3) and our CoWoS industry analysis, we are further raising CoWoS industry capacity to 270kwpm from 260kwpm end-2027E, up from 160kwpm end-2026E. Current visibility suggests requirement for further CoWoS capacity expansion in 2028, even with Intel's EMIB-T and TSMC's CoPoS ramping for large package AI accelerator in 2028-29. We believe the trend reflects more robust Cloud AI chip demand, especially from CPUs and ASICs, which we think should mostly stay at CoWoS in 2028-29. The migration toward larger package with heterogenous integration also consumes a lot more capacity. Meanwhile, CoWoS supply continues to diversify, thanks to improving capabilities of OSATs and larger capacity requirement. For CoW, we view ASE's expansion to be more aggressive to reach 70kwpm capacity end of 2027E from 20kwpm end of 2026E, vs TSMC / Amkor's CoW capacity at 180kwpm / 20kwpm end of 2027E. For WoS, as we recently highlighted, TSMC could introduce a new OSAT partner for mass production in 2028 on top of its collaboration with ASE.

ASIC efforts bearing fruit

After several years of investment, the large hyperscalers and AI natives are making solid progress on custom silicon for accelerator and CPU into 2027. On accelerator, Microsoft's Maia 300 performance appears to be competitive, and we estimate Maia 200/300 units of 50/350k in 2027, up from ~100k of total Maia's in 2026. OpenAI's Jalapeño may also ramp to 600-700k units in 2027E from 150k in 2026E. Meta's MTIA also targets higher volume to ~450k units in 2027, although visibility seems lower than Microsoft and OpenAI. Large projects such as Google TPUs and Amazon Trainium are on track to reach our estimates of 9m / 3.2m packages in 2027 from 4.1m / 2.5m in 2026E.

Upside to Nvidia and AMD's demand

We raise Nvidia's AI GPU production units in 2027 from 8.2m to 8.8m with higher Rubin estimates and ~200k Rubin CPX units. Rubin Ultra with similar package architecture and HBM de-spec may ramp more smoothly and quickly from mid 2027. We lift AMD's CoWoS demand in 2027E by 11% to factor in more robust ramp of the Venice server CPU, which may reach 5mn in 2027E vs our prior estimate of 4mn. We keep AMD's accelerator units at 1.9mn for 2027E due to tight supply.

Stock recommendations

Along the semiconductor supply chain for Cloud AI, our top picks are TSMC (the industry's leading Cloud AI foundry), MediaTek (design services for Google TPU with new ASIC opportunity; Key Call Buy), and ASE (advanced packaging & testing). We estimate backend, including advanced packaging, to reach ~12%/16% of TSMC sales in 2026/27E. TSMC's advanced packaging sales should sustain ~50% CAGR growth in 2026-30E even with Intel's EMIB competition. Critical equipment suppliers for advanced packaging & testing could also benefit from faster CoWoS expansion and the trend toward larger and more complicated package structure, and we like All Ring, GPTC, Chroma, Hon Precision, and ASMPT. We lower our price target for GPTC from NT $5,000 to NT$4,300, based on the same 33x average 2027-28E PE. We lower our GPTC EPS estimates by 25%/21%/8% in 2026/27/28E as we factor in lower tool unit for sales recognition in 2026 and lower ASP assumption. Maintain Buy as we believe GPTC will be a key beneficiary of advanced packaging capacity expansion. We like Aspeed for its strong BMC outlook, and Alchip for its Amazon Trainium3 and Trainium4 opportunities.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Tech investing involves risk. It is difficult for the investment community, UBS included, to project the financial results of tech companies, as their operating models are highly volatile and unpredictable, and they compete in a highly dynamic marketplace. In addition to their low predictability, valuing tech stocks can be challenging because neither traditional nor non-traditional valuation measures have provided much insight into how tech stocks trade.

We value GPTC based on PE methodology.

Downside risks include: 1) slower-than-expected CoWoS capacity expansion; 2) competitors achieving technological advancements; 3) geopolitical uncertainty; and 4) worse-than-expected AI growth.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
