Favorable pricing, product mix to elevate 2H26-2027F profit margins

New AI datacenter orders remain major growth driver

More positive on Panjit's AI datacenter power MOSFET supply chain position

Our recent market survey suggests sustained tight supply of select power discrete products in 2H26F, such as power/small signal MOSFET, and diodes. Future Electronics' monthly report indicates lengthened lead times for many MOSFET and diode variants in Jul/Aug 2026, along with an uptrend in pricing (Fig 5). On the other hand, SDI's (2351 TT, Buy) management indicated that IDM customers are placing more lead frame orders to the company with favorable pricing in 2H26E, in order to meet stronger AI-datacenter demand and to secure market share. As some products' lead times have reached historical record levels (for e.g., select Schottky/switch diodes and LV/HV MOSFET lead times reached 52 weeks in Aug 2026, vs 20 weeks a year ago), and with limited capacity expansion among IDMs/foundries in the near term, we expect the tight supply to continue in 2H26-1H27F. We also expect such a benign environment to be a tailwind for vendors to pass-through cost increases.

We expect Panit's 2H26-2027F revenue growth and margin expansion to sustain

Panjit's 2Q26 revenue grew 16% q-q, better than management's target, and was driven by improved demand across end markets. 2Q26 GM reached a 19-quarter high at 33.2% on a greater revenue scale, better product mix, and favorable pricing. We expect the revenue and profit margin q-q momentum to sustain in 2H26-2027F, as the company has secured more orders from the AI datacenter power discrete market, along with price hikes (mainly to pass-through rising fab manufacturing and material costs). We expect 3Q26-4Q26F revenue to grow 10%/5% q-q, with AI datacenter related revenue contributing 12-14% total sales (vs 11% in 1H26). We also assume 2H26-2027F GM to reach 36.5%/37.3% (vs 33.0% in 1H26) with higher AI and automotive sales exposure, better utilization rates across manufacturing sites, along with a third round of price hikes in 4Q26F.

2026F/27F EPS raised by 3%/10%; TP increased to TWD214, implying 38.5% upside

We raise 2026F/27F EPS, as we assume contribution from more new AI datacenter orders mainly starting in 2H26-2027F, and expect a more favorable mix and pricing to form better margin profiles. Our TP of TWD214 is based on 25x 2027F EPS of TWD8.55 (previous TP of TWD195 was based on 25x 2027F EPS of TWD7.79). The stock currently trades at 18x/16x 2027F/28F EPS.

The company's products are widely used in many end applications including industrial, green energy, consumer electronics, automotive, computers, power supply, and communication.

Valuation Methodology

Our TP of TWD214 is based on 25x 2027F EPS of TWD8.55. We use 25x to derive our TP, vs historical P/E range of 18x since 2018 (The stock traded in a range from 15-33x when the company was in earnings growth upcycle). The benchmark to the stock is TAIEX.

Risks that may impede the achievement of the target price

Downside risks: 1) global macroeconomic uncertainty that may drag demand for the company's products, especially auto and industrial; 2) slower-than-expected supply chain inventory destocking; and 3) pricing competition from peers if global demand is worse than expected.

ESG

Panjit requires itself to uphold the business principles of "innovation, growth, responsibility, and sustainability" in the global semiconductor supply chain in the face of unprecedented changes in the aspects of global environment and climate, economy and society. The company actively promotes and continues to make improvement in environmental protection, employee safety and health, labor conditions, moral values, and the maintenance of energy, striving to become a member of the green enterprises in the world while constantly strengthening ESG (the beauty of the Environment, the goodness in society, and the truthfulness in governance) actions to respond to changes and challenges in the future with a high level of dynamics.
