UBS EMEA Private Company FinTech Conference 2026 (Register here)

- Please join us for our EMEA Private Company FinTech Conference and Networking Event (Sep 30 - Oct 1 2026) at our UBS London offices. (Register). A unique networking opportunity with industry peers, experts, thought leaders and executives from leading private FinTech companies and investors. Company list of 70+ thus far (full list here) includes a largely C-level participation from companies such as: Airwallex, Allica Bank, Anchorage, Bunq, Epos Now, Finastra, FNZ, Morse (fka Sling Money), Nium, Oaknorth, Open FX, PPRO, Rain, Raisin, Sardine, Solana Foundation, Starling, Swile, Sygnum, Thought Machine, and many many more.

Nexi & Worldline 2Q read across

Nexi and Worldline both reported this week, presenting a resilient, but negative tilted view of the emerging macro picture in Europe, but also certain idiosyncracies make it challenging to draw any firm conclusions. Nexi flagged material weakness in Germany in the merchant processing environment, due to its over-exposure (~30% of Germany) to hospitality related spending (i.e., restaurants), but also a high level of unemployment and bankruptcies. Also the company flagged a less severe negative impact in Sweden and Finland. Worldline conversely (with higher share and more diverse spending mix) noted stability / HSD growth in Germany, seemingly contradicting Nexi (although the company acknowledged its low comparison base due to prior year challenges), noting a shift from discretionary to non discretionary. The company implicitly lowered its 2H Merchant Solutions guide, out of caution, but at an aggregate level noted stability, and delivered a 2Q accel in Merchant ('fully pruned basis'), after previously guiding to a decel. Overall a moderately negative read to Adyen, but not perfectly extrapolatable given idiosyncratic challenges. See our recaps for Nexi and Worldline.

Card networks CQ2 read across (Visa & Mastercard)

Card networks read across was mostly positive (see our updated benchmarking below). Mastercard cross border volume troughed in April across all metrics as related to the Middle East conflict, accelerating through the quarter (i.e., cross border ex intra-Europe, from 7% in April, to 12% in May to 15% in June, to 12% in July, with June strength driven by timing differences in Amazon prime day). Specifically the company flagged outbound GCC travel recovering throughout the quarter, and a return of Venezuela. US volume remained mostly stable. Visa also flagged the promotional event (Prime Days) benefitting June, and a degree of potential World Cup benefit, expecting a bit of a normalization in August. Overall cross border volumes ex intra Europe accelerated ~1ppt from CQ1. In the US, the consumer was flagged as strong across all facets - credit, debit, discretionary, non-discretionary, and even lower spending bands. Tax returns likely benefitted, fuel price increases, retail, in addition to aforementioned benefits. Visa Europe payments volume FX neutral accelerated ~1ppt in CQ2. Overall a reasonably positive read across to Adyen, particularly given the cross border eComm strength (although somewhat obscured by fluctuations throughout the quarter and one-offs as flagged above, which Adyen still could have benefitted from). See the recaps of our US colleagues for Visa and Mastercard.

Highlights

Wise US OCC Charter Denied (link)

Wise's application for a US national trust charter was denied by the OCC, largely due to unresolved remediation related to a May 2025 AML/BSA consent order, although the company stated explicitly that there is no impact on its existing US operations. Importantly, Wise has already completed most remediation actions and could reapply once the remaining items are resolved. We view the setback as procedural rather than strategic, particularly as several alternative routes to US payment-rail access are emerging. The Federal Reserve's proposed framework for non-bank access to "skinny" master accounts (proposed May 2026) could ultimately provide access to FedNow and Fedwire without a bank charter, while the GENIUS Act (effective 18 January 2027, pending final rulemaking) may offer a pathway as a qualified stablecoin issuer. In addition, the bipartisan PACE Act (introduced April 2026, not yet enacted) could provide another route for payments firms to access Federal Reserve infrastructure.

Adyen seeking to become the Trust layer in Agentic Commerce (link)

Adyen-hosted webinar: "The Shortlist Economy - How AI Is Rewiring Buying Habits \(and How Merchants Can Respond\)" concluded that the agentic commerce revolution is not facing a technological challenge, but rather one of building trust to drive large-scale adoption. Industry experts believe the Agentic commerce total addressable market to reach US$17tn by 2030 (McKinsey), unraveling in three phases: human-in-the-loop (we are here today), multi-merchant coordination & delegated execution, and autonomous commerce. The key opportunity for Adyen is that each phase exponentially increases the need for a modern core payment infrastructure layer, for agent authentication, fraud, orchestration, dispute and connectivity. A position where Adyen is seeking to become the "trust" layer of Agentic commerce. Yet, a significant degree of merchant modernisation is still required, with fragmented protocols and complex integrations across product data, inventory, pricing, tax, fulfilment and payments limiting adoption today. As most merchants are unlikely to manage this complexity themselves, we see growing demand for infrastructure providers able to abstract these requirements and offer a single integration point across AI ecosystems. In our view, this creates an opportunity for Adyen to deepen merchant relationships, protect payment volumes and extend beyond processing into higher-value commerce orchestration. At a time when investors have raised questions around Adyen's terminal value, we read these developments positively, demonstrating management's ability to identify and build towards the next commerce interface before adoption reaches scale.

Adyen's Expanding Role Within the Shopify Ecosystem (link)

Only ~60% of countries that support Shopify Payments currently offering a native POS proposition, creating an opportunity for Adyen to benefit from international expansion through its partnership. We talked to a former Shopify Senior Payments Partnerships Manager suggesting that Adyen's role within the Shopify ecosystem has evolved from a traditional third-party integration towards a more strategic position spanning both Shopify's third-party payments layer and elements of its native payments stack. According to our expert, this reflects four areas where Shopify's priorities increasingly align with Adyen's natural strengths: broad international processing coverage, particularly across EMEA and markets with complex local requirements; extensive local and alternative payment method coverage, which becomes increasingly important outside the US; stronger omnichannel capabilities that unite online and card-present payments on a common acquiring and data architecture; and an enterprise focus that aligns with Shopify's push upmarket. Against this backdrop, Adyen appears well positioned both to win incremental processing within Shopify Payments as the platform expands beyond its current 40+ countries and to serve larger merchants through strategic third-party relationships. While Stripe remains well positioned in North America and is unlikely to be displaced broadly. Our expert believes Adyen is increasingly favoured where Shopify requires stronger local authorisation performance, broader APM/LPM coverage or faster market entry.

Fireside chat with Ryft Pay CEO, servicing middle market platforms & marketplaces (link)

Ryft is a UK payments scale-up founded in 2021 by Sadra Hosseini, Alex Mackenzie and Richard Kirby after they built and sold hospitality marketplace Butlr, which had reached c.1m users. Ryft now supports 1,500+ merchants, providing payments infrastructure for marketplaces, franchises and software platforms, including merchant onboarding, underwriting, and acquiring orchestration. Ryft targets platforms processing c.£10m–£300m of annual GMV, positioning itself between Stripe Connect self-serve model and Adyen for Platforms enterprise proposition. It has secured FCA authorisation and raised a reported £7.4m in seed and Series A. Ryft is planning to fuel broader expansion internationally, starting with continental Europe and US. Stripe Doubles Down on Capturing a Share of the AI Value-chain: OpenRouter (link)

Stripe is in talks to buy OpenRouter, an AI startup that built a unified platform which helps businesses optimise token usage and efficiency, by deciding the best AI model for each specific task and request in real-time. OpenRouter's platform enables a comparative access to more than 400 leading-edge western (OpenAI, Anthropic, Google) and chinese (DeepSeek) foundational models, meaning businesses can adapt their use-cases and token usage dynamically. The platform is used by more than 8 million developers, and handles 1.5 quadrillion tokens a year, including 15%-30% of Google's, 20%-40% of OpenAI's, and c. 50% of Microsoft's Foundry service. The acquisition would create an organic synergy and complimentary with Metronome, positioning Stripe beyond payment processing, and into a fully-integrated operational infrastructure layer for AI-native businesses. We positively view that modern PSPs are moving up the stack, increasingly competing on deepening merchant relationships and offerings, and positioning as AI-commerce infrastructure layer than traditional take rate economics.

Edenred: Abry invests $75m in Pay NA, with convertible eq. of 40%, preference up to $150ms (link)

As part of Edenred's "Amplify25-28" portfolio rationalisation strategy to focus on core operations. Abry Partners is investing US$ 75m in Edenred Pay North America, implied equity valuation of US$ 375m at c.25x EBITDA (segment), in a convertible common shares deal at 40%, and preferred US$ 150m.

Apple Chooses Klarna for Device Leasing Services (link)

Apple is reportedly working with Klarna to launch a hardware leasing programme, "Apple Upgrade," expected to launch on 28 July 2026 and covering iPhones, iPads, Macs and Apple Watches. Reported lease terms are up to 24 months for iPhones and Apple Watches and up to 36 months for Macs and iPads. Customers will be allowed to keep or return the device at the end of the lease and may be eligible for an upgrade, while some transactions may carry an additional fee, though pricing details have not been disclosed. The announcement further deepens Klarna-Apple partnership that started by the Apple Pay integration in October 2024.

Recent News

Adyen and Epos Now, From POS to FinTech Platform (link)

Epos Now, which serves more than 80,000 merchants globally, has leveraged Adyen's payments infrastructure not only for acquiring and omnichannel commerce but also to support its embedded finance proposition, Epos Now Capital. Through the platform, eligible merchants can access funding directly within their existing software workflow, creating a more integrated commerce ecosystem alongside payments, POS and business management tools. Modern PSPs are increasingly enabling software platforms to monetise merchant relationships beyond payments alone, spanning acquiring, embedded finance and unified commerce. More broadly, it reinforces our view that platform distribution and embedded financial services remain attractive vectors for Adyen's long-term growth.

CLARITY Act Stalled (link)

Senate Republicans released updated CLARITY Act text on 22 July, combining Senate Agriculture and Banking Committee versions into a 616-page bill and potentially setting up a full Senate vote as soon as the following week. The latest text includes an ethics section that would block public officials and spouses from issuing or sponsoring digital assets while allowing investment in digital assets, with the provision set to sunset after noon on 20 January 2029. The Block reported that DOJ enforcement of the ethics provision is likely to face Democratic pushback, with Sen. Angela Alsobrooks quoted as saying she would not support the bill if DOJ-only enforcement remains the language. If passed, clearer market-structure rules and developer safe harbours could support investment in tokenised assets, custody, exchange infrastructure and stablecoin payment rails. Our prior stablecoin work would still caution against assuming near-term consumer card displacement, the institutional path remains more credible where pain points are clearer: treasury, cross-border, B2B payments and liquidity management.

Standard Chartered's subsidiary granted HKD Stablecoin Issuing License (link)

Anchorpoint, a Standard Chartered backed joint venture, targets a phased launch of regulated HKD-backed stablecoin HKDAP from Q2 2026. The Hong Kong Monetary Authority has granted an issuer license. The company is focused on tokenised real-world asset settlement / distribution and cross-border capital and payment flows, where HKDAP is a regulated medium of exchange to support next-generation trade and instantaneous settlement.

Korean Regulatory Uncertainty Threatens Hana and Dunamu KRW Stablecoin Alliance (link)

Hana Financial and Dunamu, operator of Upbit, are reportedly building a next generation digital finance ecosystem centred on a won-denominated stablecoin, expanding cooperation into blockchain-based overseas remittance, integrated asset management and platform integration. Hana is expected to handle reserve asset management, payment / settlement and FX, while Dunamu provides blockchain technology and digital-asset distribution; actual services are expected only once relevant regulations, including issuance structure and reserve management, are established. The technical foundation is Dunamu's GIWA public blockchain, which the parties plan to use for an operating framework and gradually introduce blockchain-based overseas remittance services. Hana had earlier acquired a 6.6% stake in Dunamu for about KRW1tn, becoming its fourth-largest shareholder.

ECB Targets 2029 Digital Euro Launch; Adyen, Nexi, Worldline among PSPs selected for Pilot Phase (link)

The ECB expects to be ready for a potential digital euro issuance in 2029, subject to legislation being approved in 2026, with a 12-month pilot scheduled to start in H2 2027. More than 50 payment service providers applied to participate, with 36 firms selected, including Adyen, Nexi, Stripe, Revolut and Worldline.

Swift's Blockchain Enters Pilot Phase with Live Transactions (link)

Swift and 17 banks across six continents will pilot live transactions on a blockchain-based shared ledger that uses tokenised bank deposits to enable 24/7 payments and real-time liquidity management. The platform allows participating banks to move tokenised funds instantly across their own ledgers while continuing to use existing payment rails for final settlement, reducing the need to pre-fund accounts and hold excess "trapped" liquidity across multiple jurisdictions. Swift development suggests that the future of payments could evolve through the modernisation of existing global networks rather than their replacement.

Result Recaps

Worldline 1H 2026 First Read (link)

Mixed and Confused, given the plethora of divestitures and "pruned" scope changes. The result reads slightly positive, driven by a surprise (fully-pruned) FCF beat (-€35m) vs Cons (-€58m). NNR decelerated in MS in 1Q, driven by mix shift to acquiring (faster volume growth, tied to higher scheme fee volumes). Management cut FY26 revenue guidance to flat to marginally positive growth from low-single-digit growth (~€45m at the midpoint, assuming that moves from 2% to 1%), but maintained adjusted EBITDA guidance of €630m to €650m and improved FCF guidance to €(60)m to €(40)m. The negative flag ties to softness in FS from terminated contracts, leading to -6-7% YoY for FS segment growth (although in line with consensus). Furthermore, the company embedded some caution around the macro environment in MS and a temporary benefit tied to delayed migrations off of Worldline benefitted 2Q which should not be extrapolated. Further maintaining EBITDA guide despite a sizeable beat in EBITDA (~€20m), aligns with the cut to revenue it seems.

Nexi 1H 2026 Results Recap (link)

In line across the board with excess cash well ahead, 2026 guide reiterated. Nexi delivered in line across the board in 2Q / 1H 2026, with a sizeable beat in excess cash (LFCF), with MS revenue flat YoY, total revenue growth 1% [+4% underlying basis], and EBITDA declining 2% (51.7% margin). FY26 guide was reiterated across the board (revenue growth of 2%, EBITDA stable in Euro terms, and excess cash of €750m). 1H excess cash of €400m was well ahead of UBSe and cons (€304m / €324m respectively), roughly flattish YoY. Net Debt of €5.1b, and gross debt now below €6b for the first time since 1H21 (post Nets / SIA mergers). Merchant growth was 3% underlying in 2Q (flat relative to 1Q), with transaction value processed +3% YoY (implied ~6% ex M&A 'underlying' basis). The company notes benefits from domestic scheme processing in the Bancomat hub ramp offset by Italian bank M&A and "some headwinds" on consumer spending. DACH & Poland saw a sizeable decel, from 12% revenue growth in 1Q to ~3% growth in 2Q, as noted tied to macro weakness in Germany specifically. The shares have run quite a bit in recent weeks, but a decent print with a solid FCF beat, and de-leveraging story continues to progress, we will look to understand the FCF dynamics which imply a ~15% downgrade to current consensus 2H excess cash (LFCF) at the reiterated guide.

Edenred 1H 2026 Results Recap (link)

Edenred delivered 2Q26 results ahead of consensus (for operating revenues ~2%, and EBITDA, ~2%) which contains a number of moving pieces, primarily relating to the regulatory impact in both Italy and Brazil, on top of a worsening macro picture in certain countries (unemployment increases) and fuel price increases. Intrinsic operating revenue growth was flattish at 7.9% vs 8.2% in 1Q. The company noted lesser impact than anticipated in Brazil, which helped augment underlying business strength. As a result, guidance was increased on LFL EBITDA growth for 2026E (to -7% to -10% LFL from -8% to -12%, lifting the midpoint by ~€20m). A portion of the beat was tied to interest revenue strength, which also benefits EBITDA (roughly half of the beat on EBITDA). Ideally we would have seen a 'normalized' EBITDA for the regulation impact, but was not disclosed. We illustratively estimate a 'normalized' operating EBITDA growth of ~10% (UBSe) relative to the -5.9% LFL (and 16% in 2H25), however there is noise relating to one-time cost actions which make comparability challenging (more on this below). Putting it all together, we believe that the upper end of the guidance range (i.e., €1250-1270m) is most likely if smaller than expected Brazil impacts continue to flow through in 2H26, even accounting for a modest incremental macro deterioration in Benefits.

Temenos 2Q 2026 Results Recap (link)

Temenos reports a miss on 2Q Subs & SaaS revenue on a challenging comparison (-13% LFL vs UBSe +2%) citing large deals which slipped (mostly in Europe), which they expect to fully sign in 3Q (the ~$20m is directly flowed into 3Q, for the 30%+ guide). Through the first few weeks of 3Q the 'majority of the slipped revenue' has been signed according to the company (including a large CEE bank, and a T1 European bank), expecting the remaining in the coming weeks (with confidence tied to their salesforce and size of 2H pipeline relative to prior periods). The company was clear to emphasize timing mismatch rather than structural macro trends or any permanently lost deals. The weakness also drove a ~2ppt decel in ARR from 13% to 11% YoY in 2Q (in line with UBSe), but still reiterated its full year expectation for 12% growth. The company beat on EBIT despite the revenue miss due to lower costs (~$20m), mostly a variable downward flex (i.e., bonus incentives) according to the company.

Boku FH1 2026 Profit Warning (link)

Revenue in 1H came in 11% below VA consensus and 14% below UBSe, primarily reflecting a key merchant in the advertising vertical adopting dual sourcing in one market, alongside the suspension of two DCB connections by local authorities in a single market. As a result management chose to reset guidance for FY26 with revenue expectations of $135-142m (vs VA cons of $155m) and adjusted EBITDA of $38-42m (vs VA cons of $50m). Offsetting the weaker financial update, we view the Stripe channel partnership, which enables Stripe merchants to access Boku's LPMs (in 4 APAC regions initially), as a significant strategic positive. We estimate Stripe processed ~$570b of payment volume outside the US in 2025, although only a fraction is likely to have been via third-party LPM providers. While Boku's immediate addressable opportunity is therefore limited, we see meaningful potential for scope of the relationship to broaden over time. Importantly, the partnership helps address investor concerns around competition from large global PSPs and supports the view that Boku can act as an enabling infrastructure partner, rather than solely as a direct competitor.

Pluxee Q3 FY26 Results Recap (link)

Pluxee delivered a better-than-expected Q3 revenue print, with total revenue of €312m / -3.3% organic YoY, ahead of average consensus of €299m / -4.3% organic, as both operating revenue of €270m / -4.1% organic beat average consensus of €260m / -5.1% organic, and float revenue of €42m / +2.8% organic beat average consensus of €39m / +0.3% organic. The beat came despite the anticipated initial impact of Brazil's PAT reform and a softer macro backdrop in Continental Europe, with management highlighting continued commercial momentum as Q3 BVI grew +9.4% organically and Employee Benefits BVI grew +8.0% organically. Importantly, FY26 guidance was reiterated for stable organic total revenues, slight organic expansion in recurring EBITDA margin, and around 80% recurring cash conversion on average over FY24-26, while Pluxee continues to expect Brazil-related impacts into FH1 FY27 before a return to sustainable profitable growth from 2H FY27.

Wise FY26 Results Recap (link)

Wise continued to show it is progressing nicely after reporting its full P&L for FY26 (after a 4Q top line only trading statement in April in IFRS), and its first full report in US GAAP. Income Before Tax (IBT) was delivered ahead of guidance and UBSe ($354m / 27% vs UBSe $309m / 23%), despite a 35% increase in headcount YoY, accentuated by transaction gross margin strength (up ~300bps YoY). The company benefitted from a +$80m swing in other income, but was impacted negatively by $45m in US listing costs and $70m in transaction expense GAAP/IFRS changes, nearly netting out. Importantly guidance for FY27 indicates the high end of the medium term IBT margin target range (high end of 20-25%), with revenue guidance started at the mid-point of the medium term 15-20% growth (vs UBSe 20%). The company noted its plans to continue to re-accelerate investing in price in FY27, at ~1-2bps per quarter impact to the cross take rate, resulting in 1H weighting higher relative to 2H (both revenues and IBT). Further, a sizeable share buyback of $500m ($300m to decrease sharecount) should be welcomed by shareholders, and would equate to ~3% of the market cap at current prices. We will hear from the company again in 3 weeks with their FQ1 2027 trading statement.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Risks include 1) Further degradation in the eCommerce enterprise pricing environment, owing to extended periods of high inflation (cost-conscious merchants looking to offload third-party vendor costs where possible), and continuous pressure via cross-subsidisation by competition (incremental pricing actions by competitors such as Braintree, Chase, and more) continuing incrementally (possibly sacrificing net revenue profitability on payments solely for the purpose of gaining share); 2) Macro pressures causing a significant deterioration in consumer spending levels given indexation to discretionary goods (i.e., retail eCommerce, travel, and subscriptions comprising a significant portion of volumes); and 3) increased competition from other modern processors such as Adyen, Stripe, Checkout.com, Sumup, and others who have meaningful volumes; 4) Bank technology is a very competitive market, and it will be difficult for non-incumbents to gain share in new markets, given the incumbency advantages and contractual provisions of long duration contracts, particularly in the US; 5) Cross border payments is a very fragmented market, and varies on a locality to locality basis - making local nuance a key differentiator.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
